

New integrated management system

Gilgen Door Systems AG's integrated management system was certified on 11 July 2018

Quality, security and environmental sustainability are key success factors for Gilgen Door Systems. The quality management system was first certified in 1993 and has undergone systematic further development. The issues of workplace safety, health protection and environmental protection were managed by two separate, until recently uncertified systems.

To comply with customers' requirements and legal regulations, Gilgen Door Systems introduced an effective and efficient integrated management system on 11 July 2018 that meets ISO 9001, 14001 and 45001 standards. In the area of workplace safety and health protection, Gilgen Door Systems is one of the first companies in Switzerland to have been certified according to the new ISO 45001 regulation (successor to OHAS 18001).

With this successful certification, Gilgen Door Systems has reached another milestone on the path of excellence. It is our mission to satisfy the highest standards of quality across all business units and areas of operation in terms of our services, product range and fulfilment of customer requirements, as well as to constantly improve and optimise processes.
